Vacation Bible School

Hope Grace Brethren Church will be hosting Friendimension Vacation Bible School

Carla Cook, VBS coordinator, calls it "This summer's friendliest vacation destination," and it's right here in Dillsburg!

The Friendimension adventure, a community vacation bible school will take place weekly every Sunday from June 10, 1990 through August 19, 1990. Classes meet at 9:30 a.m. and programs are available for children and adults alike.

"Our focus is friendship," says Cook. "Students of all ages discover what scripture says about making friends and keeping them. And, most important, how to become Forever Friends with Jesus Christ.

Students will enjoy singing, craft projects, puppet shows, creative learning activities, and graded Bible discovery lessons.

Children of all ages are welcome. Adults too!! It's absolutely free. So let's make this a family affair, and come not altogether.

For enrollment information, call 432-5332 or 432-5832 after 6 p.m.

Deb's Country Corner

Hello Country Folks,

Just got through planting some marigolds petunias and rose bushes, just like I'm sure many of you have done. My mother says I've inherited my "green thumb" from my grandmother. People used to say she could stick a toothpick in the ground and make it grow.

She was a great gardener in her time. When spring planting comes around it brings to my mind her canna lilies. Grandma had a prize crop of these beauties. She would fuss and work to get them dug up in the fall and then they would go into the cellar for storage till winter. If you would see the dried up bulbs come out in the spring you would wonder how they could ever grow. But grow they did.

She had a circular flower bed right in the middle of the yard. The canna lillies would ring the outside of the bed, setting off the other flowers. In between the lilies were about a dozen small cement rabbits. Not the little plastic, lawn decorations they have now adays. These were poured cement in the form of a rabbit. In the dead center of it all was an umbrella tree. Get you thinking there, didn't I? If you aren't quite sure what an umbrella tree is, let me refresh your memory. It's a metal pole with about 10 metal staves radiating from the middle. At the end of each curved stake is a holder for a flower pot. They were great for hanging your head into when mowing the grass. But Grandma's was always filled with all sorts of colorful flowers. Where she found the time for gardening, I don't know. She raised nine kids, helped farm and took care of a huge old farm house, but her flowers were always perfect.

My idea of gardening is us petunias, six marigolds and two rose bushes, all with black plastic spread between them so I don't have to hoe weeds. Throw a little fish food on them and there's my masterpiece.

Recipe for this week is one of the simplest I've ever come across. This is strawberry season so here's my recipe for strawberry freezer jam. Use plastic containers because they are safer in the freezer.

No Cook Strawberry Jam

Cup and wash about 1 quart of strawberries. Gently crush the fruit. Add 4 cups of sugar and set aside. Mix 1/4 cup water and 1 box of Sure-Jell and bring mixture to full boil for at least 1 minute. Add Sure-Jell mixture to fruit and stir constantly for at least 3 minutes, until sugar is dissolved. Spoon into clean, plastic freezer containers. Freeze until ready to use.

HOUSEHOLD HINT OF THE WEEK. As fruit season approaches, you may be inclined to start thinking about baking fresh fruit pies. Here's a little timesaver I use. Get out your pie pans and line them with plastic wrap. Mix several batches of the pie fillings and pour into the lined pie pans. Freeze everything. When the filling is frozen hard, remove from the pie pan, wrap tightly in more plastic wrap, or place in ziploc bag. Then, when your family is ready for homemade pie, just take out a frozen middle, lay between two pie crusts and bake normally.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK. You can't change the past, but you can rule a perfectly good present by worrying too much about the future.

If you have any ideas or recipes to share please contact the Banner at 432-3456 or write in The Dillsburg Banner, 31 S Baltimore Street Dillsburg, Pa 17019

Bye for this week.

[illegible] as a week or so before Christmas my wife and I were shopping from a party and saw a catwalk at our local canoeing pond. We stopped and saw that East German troops were dismantling the guard tower that had stood there. A crowd had gathered to watch and the front of the crowd, a police line was being maintained by West Berlin Police and men of the VoPo My wife and I were struck by the ease with which they worked in cooperation. There was a familiarity in their manner that we could not explain. Scarcely a month before these men were working diligently against each other. They are still symbols of two completely opposite ideas. We watched as they talked and joked. In their peculiar British accented German, as some of the West Berliners offered the VoPo gifts of ham and sweet rolls. How could 28 years of enmity vanish so quickly? I suppose one could simply say that it was a case of two professionals, each doing his duty but it was clear that the brutal scope of politics was not broad enough to reach these men that night. These scenes are now common, but I am still absorbed by the seeming paradox.

Between then and now, almost all of Eastern Europe has changed and some of the original frenzy has subsided. The sight of East Germans and their tiny cars is no longer remarkable. Small groups of West Berliners are beginning to strain under the weight of their city's welcome. Some East Berliners are struggling with the responsibilities inherent in choice. Still, tomorrow East Germans will probably vote the communists out of power and begin to create a democracy.

I have no reason to disbelieve the experts who are predicting reunification, so there are probably more acts to be played in this historic pageant, and all will receive worldwide coverage complete with detailed analysis of economics and strategic alliances. But what I want to remember is that these dramatic, sometimes grotesque, of history are primarily people, men in vans and cops. Of course I've always been taught as much. Now, however, I have learned it

Wolfe takes third Susquehanna sprint win

Randy Wolfe of Mechanicsburg, Pa piloted the Leon Wisenmeyer Construction 5W sprinter to his third win in four events this year at Susquehanna Speedway on Sunday night. The race was another Budweiser Shootout worth $2500 to Wolfe for the win.

Carl Billet took his second Susquehanna limited late model feature win while Don Zechman took the semi-late win and Jeff Rile won the thundercar main.

Bobby Weaver of Hellam started on the pole and took the lead at the drop of the green. Yellows twice on lap 2 and once on lap 18 bunched the field and the restart following the last yellow saw Randy Wolfe to get under Weaver in turn one to take the lead and the win.

The race also carried a guaranteed starting spot in the fall Budweiser Shootout. Wolfe already has a spot, Weaver joins Wolfe and Rahmer as guaranteed starters.

Racing resumes at Susquehanna Speedway on Sunday, June 10, with the sprints, limited late models, semi tates and thunderers getting the green at 7 p.m. Gates open at 5 p.m.

Weekly HEALTH TIP

COLAS vs. MILK

The years of childhood and adolescence are the time to serve years to build strong teeth and bones.

Adequate calcium in the diet is an absolute necessity.

Why is it then that so many youngsters are drinking colas (no calcium) rather than milk (the calcium food)?

Osteoporosis (weak bones), poor teeth, and other body deficiencies may well be the result in later years of colas replacing milk.
